USDA and Secretary Tom Vilsack Update

By Betsy Huber National Grange President

Last week I joined a few select agricultural leaders to hear from USDA Secretary Tom Vilsack one day after he was confirmed as Secretary of Agriculture. He outlined three most important issues he will be working on in the next few years—COVID recovery, food and nutrition insecurity, and the farm and rural economy.

On COVID recovery, Vilsack mentioned protecting the essential workers at USDA who are in the field helping farmers sign up for all their various programs. The Department is also evaluating the CFAP3 (Coronavirus Food Assistance Program) to decide if they will continue it under the new Administration. It is currently on hold until a decision is made.

Secondly, for food and nutrition insecurity, Vilsack will promote increased SNAP and WIC benefits – WIC currently has only 50% utilization. WIC serves to safeguard the health of low-income pregnant, postpartum, and breastfeeding women, infants, and children up to age 5 who are at nutritional risk by providing nutritious foods to supplement diets, information on healthy eating including breastfeeding promotion and support, and referrals to health care. Please help spread the word about this great program.

Helping restaurants recover and expanding food access to make it easier and more convenient to obtain fresh, nutritious, healthy food through distribution to schools and food banks are part of this goal.

Secretary Vilsack's third priority is improvement of the farm & rural economy after several years of lost trade and depressed prices. Access to broadband will go far to provide better economic opportunity and better educational and health care opportunities in rural areas. A shocking statistic Vilsack stated -- 90% of farmers do not earn their primary income from farming. I believe this fact does not bode well for the future of agriculture and food access in the U.S.

Other issues mentioned as important to work on were climate change, working on a goal of net zero emissions from agriculture, including forest health and "green infrastructure;" open markets for trade that is fair, competitive, and transparent with strengthened protections for US businesses; infrastructure improvement; and racial equity and inclusion to ensure that USDA programs are available to all fairly.

And lastly, the safety of food, animals, and plants as well as Land Grant universities' research are longstanding vital tasks of the Department of Agriculture.

You can be sure that your National Grange staff will be working closely with USDA to ensure the best interests of farmers are kept in the forefront.

Women's History Month in the Grange

By Kennedy Gwin, National Grange Communications Manager

Mattel isn't the only one looking to honor Eleanor Roosevelt. While the famous toy maker released a doll in the likeness of this famous Granger for International Women's Day, Junior member Emily Cabbage of Washington, is on a mission to see Roosevelt gets her own day of honor.

Emily, from Five Mile Prairie Grange, is a spunky 13-year-old Junior Granger with a lot of passion for Eleanor Roosevelt and an admirer of her amazing accomplishments.

"Eleanor Roosevelt inspired millions of people around the world with her dedicated to a lifetime of service," Emily said when asked why Roosevelt should be honored in such a way. "Her work as the longest serving First Lady and her leadership at the Human Rights Commission have lifted millions out of, poverty, broke down barriers for women in leadership and fostered positive international relations."

Emily, with the help of her mother, submitted a resolution this year for Grange to advocate for an official U.S. day of observance for Eleanor Roosevelt, who was a long-time member of the Grange in New York. This resolution passed and became part of our national policy in November 2020.

The power of women within the Grange has been a long part of our history and Emily is living proof that that spirit endures. Using her voice within the Grange, she was able to write and shepherd a resolution to passage. She gained a great sense of accomplishment, and the Grange, too, is proud because this grassroots tradition continues.

Emily said she hoped Grangers would remember that they can make a difference.

"Eleanor Roosevelt's membership in the Grange reminds us all to stay involved in the affairs of our community, your country, and your world".

Happy Women's History Month to the strong Grange women of our past, like Eleanor Roosevelt, our present, like Emily Cabbage, and our future.

Be Prepared to Promote Grange right from your Back Pocket

By Amanda Brozana Rios, Membership, Leadership Development and Communications Director

The first rule of membership is awareness.

No one will join something they do not know exists or cannot connect with.

For this reason, we're using the run up to Grange Month 2021 to encourage every Grange member and every Grange to become a Grange brand ambassador and add to their back pocket one of the greatest tools to membership recruitment: the business card.

People are interested to learn why you are a member, what you get out of the experience and then where they could fit with their current talents and grow based on our programming within the Grange.

In 2021, commit to making the Grange more accessible to your community and telling your Grange Story! Order business cards from a local vendor, and online resource or from the National Grange.

To receive the Grange logo as a PNG for use on cards you are creating or having a local printer make for you, contact Amanda at abrozana@nationalgrange.org.

Or take the work out of your efforts and order directly with Communications Manager Kennedy Gwin!

You can place your order by contacting Loretta

Washington by email at sales@nationalgrange.org or by phone at (202) 628-3507 ext. 109. She will process your order and Kennedy will contact you to complete the details and design for your approval before ordering.

Right now, the Grange Supply Store is offering a limited-time sale on business cards for any member or Grange. These full-color cards are $22 for 250 ($17 plus $5 shipping) or $28 ($21 PUS $7 SHIPPING) for 500.

Cards come with the Grange logo on the front with your Grange name, meeting time, date and place, your website and/or Facebook address and contact information for a Grange member willing to tell their Grange Story to those interested in learning more about the organization. These are designed to help you raise awareness and allow potential new members to see what the Grange has to offer.

The back includes simple information about the Grange, which you can read below, that can be customized to include information about your local chapter.

"The Grange is the nation's oldest rural and agricultural advocacy organization. Our fraternal organization has been a vital force, since its founding in 1867, in elevating men and women in rural communities and advancing the interests of rural America.

The Grange strengthens individuals, families and communities through grassroots action, service, education, advocacy and agriculture awareness.

Across the United States, there are more than 150,000 members throughout about 1,500 local Grange chapters. We welcome new members in our current chapters; look forward to establishing Granges in new communities or inviting interested individuals to become e-members at the National level."

If interested in ordering cards, please fill out the JotForm link at bit.ly/Gbc-21 (case sensitive) and we will start processing your order. You can also use the paper order form, which can be mailed to the National Grange headquarters, attention: Kennedy.

The Grange is the nation's oldest rural and agricultural advocacy organization. Our fraternal organization has been a vital force, since its founding in 1867, in elevating men and women in rural communities and advancing the interests of rural America.

The Grange strengthens individuals, families and communities through grassroots action, service, education, advocacy and agriculture awareness.

Across the United States, there are more than 150,000 members throughout about 1,500 local Grange chapters. We welcome new members in our current chapters; look forward to establishing Granges in new communities or inviting interested individuals to become e-members at the National level.

Job Opportunities Good for Ag Graduates

Courtesy of the USDA

A U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) report that projects strong employment opportunities for new college graduates interested in agriculture and related fields opened with a cautionary preface. Termed “A 2020 Pandemic Note,” it stated that the underlying study and preparation for the report began in September 2019, “when global socio-economic conditions were much different from today.” It stated that fewer than the average annual number of employment opportunities would be realized in 2020, but that the team writing the report “anticipates expanding employment opportunities in 2021 and during the remainder of the period if the pandemic can be controlled.”

The authors of the report are J. Marcos Fernandez, Allan D. Goecker and Christine A. Wilson of Purdue University; Ella Smith of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration; and Emma R. Moran of USDA’s National Institute of Food and Agriculture.

The following are some key messages from the report:

- In the United States between 2020 and 2025, employment opportunities will remain strong for new college graduates with interest and expertise in food, agriculture, renewable natural resources and the environment. An average of approximately 59,400 openings annually reflects a 2.6 percent improvement in open job positions over the past five years.
- The major employment areas for new college graduates will be in management and business (approximately 24,700 positions) and in science and engineering (approximately 18,400 positions), making up 42% and 31%, respectively, of anticipated openings.
- Employment opportunities in food and biomaterials production (approximately 7,900 positions) and the education, communications and government services sectors (approximately 8,400 positions) account for 13% and 14%, respectively, of jobs available for new college graduates in food, agriculture, renewable natural resources and the environment.
- Compared with the previous 5-year report, a decline is projected in the proportion of job openings in management and business (42% vs. 46%), and an increase in job opportunities for college graduates with expertise in science and engineering (31% vs. 27%) and in the relative proportion of job openings in education, communication and government services (14% vs. 12%).
- In the United States, between 2020 and 2025, the number of new college graduates annually seeking employment opportunities in food, agriculture, renewable natural resources and the environment will remain strong (approximately 59,400). Graduates from degree programs in food, agriculture, renewable natural resources and the environment will comprise approximately 61% (36,100) of the new graduate pool.
- Graduates with allied degrees — degree specializations offered by public and private non-profit higher education programs in biological sciences, engineering, health sciences, business, communication, etc. — who are expected to compete for employment with higher education graduates in food, agriculture, renewable natural resources and the environment, will comprise 39% (23,300) of the new graduate supply pool. These figures include graduates with baccalaureate and post-graduate and professional degrees

Deputy Handbook

No matter the size of your State Grange, Deputy State Masters/Presidents play an important role in ensuring that the structure of our organization remains strong. This new edition of the Deputy Handbook is an update to and replaces the last version published in 2001. It is intended to be a basic introduction to the duties of a State Grange Deputy and serve as a quick resource guide. Each State Grange may have additional duties or responsibilities for their Deputy corps, but this handbook created a strong foundation on which to build a larger team of state leadership.

Cost is $2.00 plus shipping

AFLAC – Supplemental Health

Benefits are available to National Grange members, the member's spouse and the member's dependent children. These supplemental benefit policies pay "CASH" directly to the members for members to use as they see fit. Members will never receive a 1099 or be taxed in any way on the cash benefits paid from these policies. Cash benefits are paid if Grange members (policy holders) have an Accident and utilize the services of a hospital emergency room or urgent care center, contract Internal Cancer, experience a Heart Attack/Stroke, need Major Organ Transplants, utilize certain services of their Dentist and more.
